Leadership Development Committee

WHAT IS LDC AND WHAT IS ITS PURPOSE?

An ICA committee designed to develop the future leaders of the construction industry through education programs and networking opportunities. This committee directly assists ICA in achieving its goal of having a trained, capable and engaged workforce that will be continually developed to meet the needs and goals of the construction industry.

Committee members don't attend Leadership Development Committee events just to shake hands and trade business cards. They come to actively participate in an environment where everyone is encouraged to share ideas, to work as a team, to take on leadership roles and build mutually-beneficial relationships with their peers that could last throughout their careers.

There are separate committees for members in the north and central areas of the state. A similar committee, the ICA Southwest Construction Roundtable, serves members in southern Indiana.

TESTIMONIALS - WHAT YOUR COLLEAGUES ARE SAYING

"This committee is a valuable resource for the development of young aggressive individuals who have a desire to be our future leaders."

-Tony Evans, vice president of E & B Paving, Inc.

"I know of no other organization in the industry that offers our young managers and future leaders a better opportunity...to receive valuable educational experiences and leadership training from current industry leaders, to gain valuable business skills and to truly learn what it takes to lead our company as we move forward."

- Darrell Gossett, president of ERMCO, Inc.

"Before I became involved with the Leadership Development Committee, I was just like any other young professional starting their career...much of my development can be attributed to the LDC program. My involvement has provided me the opportunity to further educate myself and to network with my peers. These opportunities have been invaluable to my development and the success I have experienced already in my career."

-Tyler Gerig, project engineer with Weigand Construction Co., Inc.
